

Methodist Hospital BRE Visit

On November 1st, the Addison Economic Development team joined Methodist Hospital for Surgery (MHS) in celebrating its 14th anniversary in Addison. The team, along with Mayor Bruce Arfsten, Mayor Pro Tempore Nancy Craig and City Manager David Gaines, attended a special lunch hosted by Chief Nursing Officer Patti Griffith and other key members of the MHS team to mark this significant milestone. Located in a 108,500-square-foot facility, MHS employs 336 people and serves as a leader in spine surgery, holding an impressive 12% of the Texas market share. While primarily focused on spine care, MHS also offers ENT services, cementing its role as a key provider of specialty healthcare in Addison.

Since opening its doors, MHS has grown into one of the most respected surgical facilities in the region, recognized twice by the Dallas Morning News as one of the Top 100 Places to Work and earning the prestigious Orthopedic Center of Excellence designation. The hospital is owned by Methodist (51%) and a consortium of doctors (49%), who have established MHS as a premier destination for patients and top-tier medical talent alike.

As MHS reflects on 14 years of excellence and contributions to the Addison community, its commitment to exceptional care and community impact remains strong. The recent celebration underscored MHS's enduring success and its vital role in Addison's healthcare landscape, positioning it as a valued partner in the community's growth and well-being.
