

Methodist Hospital BRE Visit

On November 13, the Addison Economic Development team visited National Life Group to celebrate their 12 years of success and growth in Addison. Hosted at their expansive 110,000-square-foot campus in Millennium Tower, the visit underscored the vital role National Life Group plays in Addison's thriving business community. With over 300 employees and 100 contractors working across four floors, the Addison campus is a critical hub for this 176-year-old life insurance and annuity leader, which ranks #7 in the nation and holds over $58 billion in assets.

National Life Group's commitment to their core values—"Bringing Peace of Mind to Everyone We Touch," "Do Good, Be Good, Make Good," and "Keep Our Promises"—is palpable throughout their Addison operation. Notably, National Life Group is the #1 annuity provider for teachers, and their philanthropic spirit and dedication to service embody their corporate motto, "Serviam" During the visit, the team had the opportunity to experience firsthand the energy and purpose that drive the organization.

Looking ahead, National Life Group is poised for continued expansion, with plans to grow their Addison team by 150 employees in the coming years. However, the company's rapid growth has also sparked discussions about transitioning from leasing to owning their property, signaling their long-term commitment to Addison. While they recently extended their lease for two years, future plans remain a point of collaboration, with follow-up discussions planned with CFO/CRO Eric Sandberg.

National Life Group's Addison campus reflects their dedication to excellence, innovation, and community impact, making them an invaluable partner in Addison's economic landscape. Their continued success aligns with Addison's vision for fostering a vibrant business environment and a strong sense of community.
